Appendix 4.3 Treaty Settlement legislation

Treaty Settlement legislation requires councils to attach information recording statutory acknowledgements to all regional policy statements, regional coastal plans, other regional plans, district plans, and proposed plans. The purpose of statutory acknowledgements is articulated in each Claim Settlement Act. In general, this includes:

- a requirement that consent authorities forward to the post-settlement governance entity summaries of resource consent applications for activities within, adjacent to, or impacting directly on statutory areas and providing for the post-settlement governance entity to waive its rights to be notified
- a requirement that consent authorities must have regard to the statutory acknowledgement relating to a statutory area in forming an opinion in accordance with s. 95E of the RMA as to whether the post-settlement governance entity is an entity that may be adversely affected by the granting of a resource consent for activities within, adjacent to, or impacting directly on the statutory area
- enabling the post-settlement governance entity and any member to cite statutory acknowledgements as evidence of the association that the entity has with the statutory areas in submissions to, and in proceedings before a consent authority concerning activities within, adjacent to or impacting directly on the statutory area. This is not binding as deemed fact but may be taken into account

Details of individual Claim Settlement Acts are recorded in this appendix, as required under Treaty Settlement legislation. This information remains public information but will not form part of the Unitary Plan document (unless adopted by the council) nor is it subject to provisions of Schedule 1 of the RMA. It is intended that information regarding the statutory acknowledgements, including the statements of association, is accessible in the council's GIS database.

Description of the statutory area

Statutory acknowledgement for Pouto stewardship area

Statutory area

The area to which this statutory acknowledgement applies (statutory area) is the area known as the Pouto stewardship area, as shown on SO Plan 70051.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

Cultural, spiritual, historic, and traditional association of Te Uri o Hau with the statutory area

Te Uri o Hau have a very special relationship with this area. It is recognised as a major Wahi Tapu (sacred area) because many of our tupuna (ancestors) are buried here. Many urupa (burial grounds) and taonga (treasures) rest beneath the whenua (land) in this region as a result of the many battles that were fought here throughout Te Uri o Hau history. During extreme weather conditions wheua (human bones) are often exposed.

Traditionally Te Uri o Hau used this region extensively for gathering kai (food). The fresh water lakes provided an abundance of kai for Te Uri o Hau. In 1909 a Te Uri o Hau rangatira said “These lakes are where we fish for eels, net mullet and snare birds for our food. They have been with us since the beginning, handed down by our tupuna to our parents and to us today”.

For Te Uri o Hau, histories such as these represent the links and the continuity between past and present generations. They reinforce tribal identity and solidarity, and document the events that shaped Te Uri o Hau as a people.

Traditionally there were many Nohoanga (temporary settlements) within this area. Te Uri o Hau whanau (families) from the Pouto peninsula and from other marae around the Kaipara Harbour would camp here catching tuna (eels) and kanae (mullet) from the lakes and gathering manu (birds), harakeke (flax), and berries from the wetlands and surrounding area.

Te Uri o Hau are the kaitiaki (guardians) of this area. Knowledge of the traditional trails and Nohoanga sites handed down from generation to generation is a taonga (treasure) to Te Uri o Hau. A hikoī (walk) along the trails allows Te Uri o Hau to rebury wheua (human remains) and taonga (treasures) should they become exposed by the drifting sand.

The mauri (life force) of this region represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is a critical element of the spiritual relationship for Te Uri o Hau with this region.

Statutory acknowledgement for Oruawhoro River stewardship area

Statutory area

The area to which this statutory acknowledgement applies (statutory area) is the area known as the Oruawhoro River stewardship area, as shown on SO Plan 70050.

Cultural, spiritual, historic, and traditional association of Te Uri o Hau with the statutory area

Te Uri o Hau whaikorero (oration) about this area goes back to the era of our eponymous ancestor, Haumoewarangi, when Te Uri o Hau first resided in the north Kaipara region. This area is very important to Te Uri o Hau because of the Wahi Tapu (sacred ground) and the urupa (burial grounds) where our tupuna (ancestors) rest.

A wahine (woman) named Te Hana lived at Mahipatua Pa on the Pouto peninsula. Her whakapapa (genealogy) links were from a different tribe that lived peacefully among Te Uri o Hau at that time. Te Hana was betrothed to Rangiwahapapa, brother of Haumoewarangi, who resided at a nearby kainga (village) called Rangitane Pa.

A warrior from Oporo Pa, which was located at the mouth of the Oruawhoro River on the Okahukura peninsula, had heard of this beautiful woman that lived across the Wairoa River at Mahipatua Pa. He visited Te Hana's kainga in the hope of gaining her affections for himself. As Te Hana was puhi (a virgin of noble family who was kept for the right match) she could not participate in the ceremonies but could only watch from a distance.

Te Uri o Hau traditions state that the visiting warrior casted a spell of atahu (love charm) over Te Hana so that her affections would be diverted to him. In time the spell began to weave its magic. Early one morning Te Hana and her maid sneaked down to the Wairoa River. They swam across the Wairoa River to the Okahukura peninsula, stopping to rest on the sandbanks on their way. While crossing the first channel, Te Hana's maid looked back to the Pouto peninsula and subsequently drowned. Te Hana, however, made it over to the other side and landed on Manukapua Island where she was found and taken to Oporo Pa.

On hearing of Te Hana's disappearance, and knowing where she had gone, Rangiwahapapa and his taua (war party) left Pouto for Okahukura. It is said that the waters of the Wairoa were black with canoes in their quest to retrieve Te Hana. A great battle took place and many lives were lost from both sides. The battle was fought along the ridge from Oporo Pa to Whakahuranga Pa and the invading taua from Pouto pushed the inhabitants of Okahukura out of the region. Te Hana was taken back to Pouto where she married Rangiwahapapa. The area known as the Oruawharo stewardship area is still tapu (sacred) today.

For Te Uri o Hau, histories such as this represent the links and the continuity between past and present generations. They reinforce tribal identity and solidarity, and document the events that shaped Te Uri o Hau as a people.

Until recently, the shores and banks of this area were used as Nohoanga (temporary settlements) by Te Uri o Hau when they returned to this area from the Pouto peninsula, Manukapua Island and the Kaipara Harbour after gathering kai (food) for the people. As kaitiaki (guardians) Te Uri o Hau would also keep watch over the Wahi Tapu sites in this area during their journeys around the Kaipara Harbour.

The mauri (life force) of this area represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all life is related. Mauri is a critical element of the spiritual relationship for Te Uri o Hau with the Oruawharo River stewardship area.

Statutory acknowledgement for Kaipara Harbour coastal area

Statutory area

The area to which this statutory acknowledgement applies (statutory area) is the area known as the Kaipara Harbour, as shown on SO Plan 70053.

Cultural, spiritual, historic, and traditional association of Te Uri o Hau with the statutory area

Te Uri o Hau has used the Kaipara Harbour for food and other resource gathering since long before 1840 and continue to do so today. Te Uri o Hau are kaitiaki (guardians) of the harbour and its resources.

There are many traditional land blocks surrounding the harbour that take their names from indigenous species that live within the Kaipara Harbour environs. There are natural features, which include sandbanks and reefs that have also been named after tupuna of Te Uri o Hau. Many whanau have also been given names that refer to these features. Indeed the very name given to the harbour, Kai meaning food and Para meaning king fern, is our acknowledgment of the sustenance obtained by our people in and around the harbour.

The Kaipara Harbour is a primary source of life and well being for Te Uri o Hau. The harbour has provided kaimoana (seafood) as well as communication routes. This is obvious in the placement of nga marae tuturu (the ancestral marae) of Te Uri o Hau at the headlands and on the foreshores of the harbour. Te Uri o Hau believe that water is the very life force of our people, a basic and core element providing for our own existence.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

The harbour is a flowing together of the waters of many rivers as elaborated in the whaikorero (oral history) of our tupuna (ancestors) and honoured by each generation thereafter. The harbour has always been of the utmost importance to Te Uri o Hau.

Oruawharo River

The Oruawharo River was named after a rangatira, Ruawharo, who resided in the area around the river. The land adjoining the river, where the Te Uri o Hau marae “Rangimarie” is sited is also named Oruawharo.

Te Uri o Hau have long gathered kaimoana (seafood) from this river and continue to do so today, particularly from the oyster reserve located on the river.

It was on this river that the first settlement of Albertlanders from Manchester was established in the Kaipara area. This settlement not only provided Te Uri o Hau with a market for their goods, but also enabled Te Uri o Hau and the settlers to interact with each other and learn from each other.

As you travel from the mouth of the Oruawharo River, towards the east, you reach the Topuni River, meaning the Rainbow River. Sometimes a rainbow forms above the meeting point of the Oruawharo River and the Topuni River. This rainbow, which can be seen at night as well as in the daylight, is vertical rather than a bow. When this rainbow is present, Te Uri o Hau believe that war is inevitable.

The mauri (life force) of the Oruawharo River represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is a critical element of the spiritual relationship of Te Uri o Hau with the Oruawharo River.

Wairoa River

The Wairoa River is one of the traditional communication links for all of Te Uri o Hau marae around the Kaipara Harbour. The awa (river) was used extensively throughout Te Uri o Hau history and last century prior to roads being established. Te Uri o Hau pa (fortified villages) sites, urupa (burial grounds) and Wahi Tapu (sacred areas) line the shores of the Wairoa River. The Waikaretu Marae was formerly located on the banks of the Wairoa River. It has now been relocated to higher ground.

The association of Te Uri o Hau with the Wairoa River has always been part of our history. Because it is the major transportation river of the northern Kaipara Harbour, many of Te Uri o Hau traditional histories involve the Wairoa. The numerous sandbanks and reefs along the length of the Wairoa River feature in many aspects of Te Uri o Hau history. Rongomai (Ariki of the Mahuhu ki te Rangi our ancestral waka) drowned on the west side of the Wairoa River; Mahanga (a Te Uri o Hau tupuna) and his people drowned at sandbanks now called “Te Wai a Mahanga” (the waters of Mahanga) and Te Hana (an important maiden in Te Uri o Hau history) rested on three sandbanks of the Wairoa during her swim to Okahukura. Te Uri o Hau kaumatua and kuia also speak of the taniwha (river guardians) whose presence may be observed at times.

For Te Uri o Hau, histories such as these represent the links and the continuity between past and present generations. They reinforce tribal identity and solidarity, and document the events that shaped Te Uri o Hau as a people.

The resources of the Wairoa River have sustained Te Uri o Hau for generations and still do today, although to a lesser degree. The kaimoana (seafood) of the Wairoa River is special to Te Uri o Hau and is considered a taonga (treasure). Te Uri o Hau historically guarded this taonga with extreme jealousy, threatening to kill anyone caught taking their resources without permission, especially if those caught did not belong to the tribe.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

The mauri (life force) of the Wairoa River represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is critical element of the spiritual relationship for Te Uri o Hau.

Otamatea River

The Otamatea is a tidal tributary of the Kaipara Harbour. The land block known as “Ranganui” meaning the great spur divides the eastern end of the Otamatea into the Wairau River flowing northeast and the Kaiwaka River flowing southeast.

Te Uri o Hau know the part of the Otamatea River that is in front of the Ranganui as the Ranganui River. This part of the Otamatea River was crucial to Te Uri o Hau transportation and communication routes when travelling around the inner parts of their rohe. Traditionally Te Uri o Hau would travel by waka, past Ranganui, onto the Kaiwaka Creek, and then on to Mangawhai to gather kaimoana. As you travel down the Ranganui River toward the northeast you arrive at the Wairau River, which takes you into the township of Maungaturoto. To the southeast, the Ranganui River flows into the Kaiwaka River, which flows into the Kaiwaka township.

Otamatea was named after Tamatea, a visitor from a distant region who traveled extensively throughout Aotearoa. When Tamatea came to the Ranganui River he found footprints along the banks of the tidal creek running from Kaiwaka into the Ranganui River, which indicated that the area was inhabited. In fact the area was inhabited by Te Uri o Hau of Ngati Whatua who claimed to have been in the area since before the great migration.

Tamatea did not see Te Uri o Hau as they surrounded him. But he soon realised that he was surrounded and had no way to escape but to swim the river. Tamatea decided to call his God, Raiera, to come and protect him. Raiera came to him in the shape of a rock by the bank. Tamatea climbed on the rock and it drifted into the middle of the river. Out of curiosity Te Uri o Hau stormed the foreshore and induced Tamatea to return ashore. Tamatea accepted their invitation and thereafter Tamatea was greatly welcomed.

Before returning to the eastern coast, Tamatea said “In recognition of your kindness and hospitality, I will leave my God, Raiera, in this river as a bridge for my descendants in days to come”. It is called Te Toka Turangi (the Rock of Tamatea) and the river was thereafter called Otamatea. Raiera has been seen at low tide, where the Kaiwaka Creek meets the Ranganui River and then on to the Otamatea River. It was last seen washed ashore at half tide mark outside Aotearoa Marae when Arama Karaka Haututu the Second died in the late 19th or early 20th century.

Some years after Tamatea left, his son lived in the Kaipara area for many years, before returning to the eastern coast. His descendants reside at Otamatea and Oruawharo today.

The Otamatea River played an important part in the life of Te Uri o Hau as part of their traditional communication routes in ancient times and continues to be important today. The Otamatea River is of great spiritual importance to Te Uri o Hau as there are many pa, Wahi Tapu (sacred areas) and urupa (burial sites) along both sides of the river. This river is also renowned for the many species of kaimoana that Te Uri o Hau used.

The mauri (life force) of the Otamatea River represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is a critical element of the spiritual relationship of Te Uri o Hau with the Otamatea River.

Arapaoa River

The Arapaoa River received its name, which in translation means Smoky Pathway, when Te Uri o Hau burnt off the scrub around the river once the land around the river was recognised as having good soil for planting crops. Te Uri o Hau Kaumatua and Kuia have said that the smoke was so thick that you had to take every precaution when travelling up the river.

The Arapaoa River flows east into the Pahi River and Paparoa Creek moving in a northerly direction. Te Uri o Hau have a spiritual connection with the Arapaoa River, which is evident today by the many Wahi Tapu (sacred area) sites that can be seen along the river. The river was also one of the main kaimoana (seafood) gathering places, and many Nohoanga (temporary settlements) sites were established along both sides of the river. Many of Te Uri o Hau wounded from the battle known as Te Ika Ranganui in 1825 died along the shores of the Arapaoa River.

The mauri of the Arapaoa River represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is critical element of the spiritual relationship of Te Uri o Hau with the Arapaoa River.

Whakakei River

Whakakei means “to lift the harvest” or to “lift the nets”. The Whakakei was well known for the big snapper that could be caught there due to the shellfish and worms found only in this area. The shellfish were similar to the toheroa and the shells of these species are still found today on the land as well as in the tidal mud flats. Because of the tremendous resources of this river, Pakarahaki, a rangatira of Te Uri o Hau, reserved it as his own fishing ground.

Te Uri o Hau have spiritual connections to the Whakakei river as seen by the many Wahi Tapu (sacred areas) sites on both sides of the river. The many kaimoana (seafood) species that Te Uri o Hau would seasonally gather from the river are evident from the many middens within the traditional Nohoanga (temporary settlements) areas.

As you travel towards the interior of the Whakakei, you pass the land known as Tuhirangi. The land along the river was very fertile and was used by Te Uri o Hau for many horticultural activities. Because of the fertility of the soil, Te Uri o Hau gifted some of this land to the Reverend William Gittos and his family as a show of friendship and so they would stay in the Kaipara area.

The mauri (life force) of the Whakakei River represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is the critical element of the spiritual relationship of Te Uri o Hau with the Whakakei River.

Statutory acknowledgement for Mangawhai Harbour coastal area

Statutory area

The area to which this statutory acknowledgement applies (statutory area) is the area known as the Mangawhai Harbour, as shown on SO Plan 70054.

Cultural, spiritual, historic, and traditional association of Te Uri o Hau with the statutory area

Te Uri o Hau have an important spiritual relationship with Mangawhai Harbour due to the many Wahi Tapu (sacred areas) sites in the area. Traditionally, prior to the battle of Te Ika a Ranganui, Te Uri o Hau gathered kaimoana (seafood) from the harbour. We also gathered materials for making tools for tattooing and cutting hair, flax fibres for use in certain types of weaving, and coastal grass species for tukutuku panels (woven panels) from the harbour and surrounding area.

There are many Te Uri o Hau traditional Nohoanga (temporary settlements) within the Mangawhai area, where we would camp to enable us to gather what we required. We would then travel back to our kainga (villages) beside the Kaipara Harbour. The Mangawhai Harbour is on the eastern rim of Te Uri o Hau's rohe and played a role as a major resource kete (food basket).

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

In 1825 the battle known as Te Ika Ranganui began in this area. A great many Te Uri o Hau people died during this battle. As a result of this battle, Te Uri o Hau consider that the area from and including the Mangawhai Harbour to Kaiwaka and beyond is tapu (sacred).

The mauri (life force) of the Mangawhai Harbour represents the essence that binds the physical and spiritual elements of all things together, generating and upholding all life. All elements of the natural environment possess a life force and all forms of life are related. Mauri is the critical element of the spiritual relationship of Te Uri o Hau with the Mangawhai Harbour.

Description of the statutory area

Land owned by the Crown and held for defence purposes at Kauri Point (as shown marked "B" on deed plan OTS-121-02).

Land owned by the Crown, and vested for control and management in the council, at Kauri Point (as shown marked "A" on deed plan OTS-121-02).

Kauri Point - Statement of association

1.1 The lands of Tāmaki Makaurau are part of the body of the earth mother Papatūānuku or, alternatively, may be visualised as part of the great fish raised up by Maui, its irregularities resulting from the careless efforts of his brothers to carve it up. Such traditions reflect tribal cosmological beliefs and explain the environment Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei ancestors and their descendants have encountered. They link ancestral names and events to landscapes and provide an unbroken association with the formation of Tāmaki Makaurau and its many generations of ongoing human occupation. They also reflect the spiritual nature of the land – associated with the actions of the gods themselves and the very body of our earth parent.

1.2 The mauri of Te Mātārae a Mana is the essence that binds physical and spiritual elements together, generating and sustaining all life. All elements of the natural environment possess mauri and all life is related. Mauri is a key part of the relationship of Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei with Te Mātārae a Mana. The condition of the land reflects our ability as kaitiaki and predicts our own wellbeing.

1.3 Auckland has a long history of Māori occupation and as the name Tāmaki Makaurau reflects, has been desired by many. It has always been a place where tribal groups came together and coalesced, emphasizing their claim to the land through a multiplicity of ancestral connections. The three segments of what is now called the Ōrākei hapū of Ngāti Whātua, namely, Te Tāōū, Ngā Oho and Te Uringutu, claim mana whenua in Tāmaki by right of raupatu (conquest), whakapapa and ahi kā (ongoing occupation). In the mid 1700s a series of battles were fought between Te Tāōū and the Waiōhua people of Tāmaki led by the rangatira Kiwi. The invading Te Tāōū prevailed on the isthmus and, following strategic marriages between them and Waiōhua women, the Te Tāōū rangatira Tuperiri revived the name of his mother's people, Ngā Oho, and that of a Māngere segment of Waiōhua, Te Uringutu. Accordingly, it is these three, Te Tāōū, Ngā Oho and Te Uringutu, who have since maintained the ahi kā of Ngāti Whātua in Tāmaki Makaurau. Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei claims descent from all groups that have occupied Tāmaki over the centuries, exemplified in our ariki Apihai Te Kawau, who signed the Treaty of Waitangi, through the title applied to him of "the man of many cousins", which reflected the many ancestral strands on which he could call to support his claims to mana whenua in Tāmaki.

1.4 Kauri Point and the area around it has an extensive history, many ancestral names and traditions being associated with the region and its associated waters.

1.5 Te Mōkai a Kahu was a taniwha pet of Kahumatamomoe who would annually swim around the rock island Te Matā o Kahu (Nihokiore / Boat Rock) near Te Mātārae a Mana, showing that the shark season was due. After Ngāpuhi destroyed the mauri stone (Te Arawa Kahu) on that island, Te Mōkai a Kahu has, according to some, remained in its underwater den in the deep channel off Te Mātārae a Mana.

1.6 The pā at Kauri Point, Te Mātārae a Mana (Mana's brow/headland), was surrounded by high cliffs on its seaward faces and was only accessible via a narrow path that wound between defensive earthworks on its landward side. It is named after Mana o Te Rangī, a Kawerau chief of the area who married Waikahuia, sister of the Waiōhua rangatira Kiwi. Mana was also a near relative of the Te Tāōū rangatira Tuperiri and hence when the Te Tāōū taua invaded Tāmaki, Mana's kāinga was the only one on the Waitemata foreshore that was spared. When Mana grew old he commended his people to Tuperiri's care. His son Takarau would subsequently serve as a warrior with Tuperiri's grandson Apihai Te Kawau. Takarau was eventually killed and the village destroyed by Ngāpuhi under Hongi in a night raid about 1823. Takarau's son Maruroa and his followers returned to reoccupy Te Mātārae a Mana for a decade from about 1835, after the end of the musket wars in Tāmaki and the return of those of Ngāti Whātua who had relocated whilst they were taking place.

1.7 Te Mātārae a Mana and its surrounding lands cannot be seen in isolation but as one occupation site / resource hub in a Tāmaki cityscape of often connected kāinga and use sites. This landscape was intimately understood by our ancestors, who practised an economic cycle that made us of all the resources of the region in different seasons at different places.

1.8 Tarahawaiki (son of Tuperiri) and Te Wahaakiaki of Te Tāōū occupied Onewa in the period after the conquest. Te Tāōū would reside seasonally at Te Mātārae a Mana (beside the aptly named Shark, now Kendall, Bay) to fish for sharks and to gather shellfish, as had Kiwi and Waiōhua before them. In the early 1790s, during a period of friction between the tribes, Ngāti Whātua surprised a fishing party from a neighbouring iwi at Te Mātārae a Mana, killed most of the crew and took their waka. The use of Te Mātārae a Mana continued in the next generation under Apihai Te Kawau and gardens were maintained there for the use of fishing parties.

1.9 In the decades prior to the signing of the Treaty, Ngāti Whātua continued to occupy and work at Maunganui/ Mangonui (a pā located on the ridge at the back of Kauri Point) and Onewa. It was at the fishing grounds off Te Mātārae a Mana that many of the sharks that supplied the massive 'Remuera Feast' of 1844 were caught. By the 1860s considerable numbers of Māori waka and boats were still to be found fishing off Te Mātārae a Mana in the March shark season. Members of Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei fish those waters to this day. Waipokanoa ('waters of foolishness') was a fishery off Te Mātārae a Mana near Te Matā a Kahu. Wairoria ('swirling waters') referred to the consistent rip-tide (and foreshore) to the west of Te Mātārae a Mana. Kendall Bay was traditionally known as Rongohau ('sheltered from the wind') and was a favourite refuge of canoe parties in heavy weather.

1.10 Ngutuwera was a pā/kāinga behind Rongohau. During the migratory season of the kākā, Kiwi and his people used to snare the birds in the wooded gullies near Ngutuwera/Tāwhiwhi-kareao (a little bay near Te Mātārae a Mana). A Ngāti Whātua taua (which included the renowned warrior Murupaenga) camped at Ngutuwera before attacking pā around the coast during the 18th Century war with Kiwi.

1.11 Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei have continued to be active participants in the society and development of Auckland in the post-Treaty era. Thus we share in the history of the past one hundred and seventy years of this city with all Aucklanders. Developments around Te Mātārae a Mana in that time are a part of our history too, For instance, roading, tracks, reserves, parks, buildings, reservoirs, construction, landscaping – even if such developments may not always have been supported by Ngāti Whātua and in many instances have damaged significant sites and failed to recognise their values to tangata whenua. Members of the hapū have never ceased visiting these places or appreciating their cultural significance and we share an interest in their ongoing sustainable management.

Mount Tamahunga - Statement of Association

Maunga Tamahunga (also known in part as the Omaha Ecological Area) is a maunga tapu, or sacred peak of iconic importance to Ngāti Manuhiri. As the highest peak within the mainland area of the Ngāti Manuhiri rohe, the mountain is of particular spiritual, cultural and historical importance. Maunga Tamahunga is also boundary marker. It is central to the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri and is greeted in oratory on the marae:

Kō Tamahunga te maunga

Kō Te Hauturu-o-Toi te motu whakahirahira

Kō Te Moana nui ō Toi te moana

Kō Manuhiri te tupuna

Kō Ōmaha te marae

Kō Te Kiri te wharenuī

Kō Ngāti Manuhiri te iwi

Maunga Tamahunga is literally the —ancestral headll of Ngāti Manuhiri. While the upper part of the mountain was imbued with tapu, its forested slopes traditionally provided a vast resource of food, building materials and rongoa for Ngāti Manuhiri. The mountain contains wāhi tapu of significance to Ngāti Manuhiri. Its forests provided a refuge for Ngāti Manuhiri in times of trouble, from early times to 1825 following the battle of Te Ika ā Ranganui. In 1864 Maunga Tamahunga became the temporary home of several hundred Māori prisoners of war who had been captured during the Crown's invasion of the Waikato and interned on Kawau Island, but who escaped from Kawau Island with Ngāti Manuhiri assistance. At this time a fortified pā was constructed on the summit of the mountain. Today Maunga Tamahunga is also valued as an important ecological area within the Ngāti Manuhiri rohe as it contains areas of unmodified forest and is the home of significant bird species like the kākā, kākāriki and miromiro, and the pēpeke or Hochstetter's frog.

Motu Hāwere - Statement of Association

Motu Hāwere (Goat Island) is of central importance to the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri. The area is an iconic reminder of the early origins of Ngāti Manuhiri and their links with the earlier iwi of the area, including Ngāi Tāhuhu.

Motu Hāwere which shelters Wakatūwhenua, has the longer traditional name of Te Hāwere ā Maki, 'the ear pendant belonging to Maki'. This sacred name is associated with Maki who led the conquest of the area in the late seventeenth century. Maki was the father of Manuhiri, the eponymous ancestor of Ngāti Manuhiri. The mana and mauri of this name and landmark, and the waters that surround it, is thus of immense significance to the iwi. The island was occupied as a fortified pā by the Ngāti Manuhiri warrior ancestor Maeaea, who was a grandson of Manuhiri. It was on the basis of descent from Maeaea that Ngāti Manuhiri received title to Motu Hāwere in 1901.

The adjoining land was maintained as a kāinga and cultivation by Ngāti Manuhiri for many generations until after early European settlement. The land, known as the Wakatūwhenua Block, part of which forms the Leigh Recreation Reserve, was specifically reserved from sale to the Crown at the request of the Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira Te Kiri Kaiparaoa in 1861.

The alienation of Wakatūwhenua and Motu Hāwere are symbolic of the fragmentation and loss suffered by Ngāti Manuhiri in the colonial period. Ngāti Manuhiri nevertheless recognise the significant ecological, scientific, educational and recreational values of Motu Hāwere and Wakatūwhenua, and are committed to jointly conserving these values, as well as the area's spiritual, cultural and historical values, into the future.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Ngāroto (Lake Spectacle and Slipper Lake) and Roto Tomarata (Lake Tomarata)

These three fresh water lakes are the largest sand dune-impounded lakes of their type on the eastern coastline of the Auckland region. The two northern lakes lie inland and to the south of Te Ārai ō Tāhuhu (Te Ārai Point) and are known jointly as Ngāroto, literally 'the lakes'. The southern-most lake is Roto Tomarata named after a sacred rata tree, Te Toma rata tapu, that was an important burial place. All three lakes are located on the Wai keri ā Wera Block which was purchased from Ngāti Manuhiri by the Crown in 1859. These fresh water lakes and their wetland margins provided a valued source of fresh water, food and weaving materials, and were focal points for settlement. Roto Tomarata is particularly significant to Ngāti Manuhiri as it was one of the dwelling places of the ancestor Kahikatearoa, the son of Manuhiri, and its environs were the resting place of many illustrious ancestors.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Tohitohi ō Reipae, also known as The Dome.

Tohitohi ō Reipae is a prominent land mark lying to the north west of Puhinui (Warkworth). This mountain was an important traditional boundary marker and is a significant historical reminder of the early ancestral origins of Ngāti Manuhiri. The mountain takes its name from the ancient and famous Tainui ancestress Reipae, who is said to have travelled north from the Waikato in the company of her sister, Reitu, who was seeking the hand of a leading northern chief Ueoneone. Unusually Reipae and Reitū travelled on the back of a large pouākai or eagle. On their journey they alighted at Taurere ō Reipae at Pākiri and then at Tohitohi ō Reipae, before finally arriving at Whānga ā Reipae (Whāngarei). Here Reipae married the leading Ngāi Tāhuhu rangatira Tāhuhupōtiki. Ngāti Manuhiri are descendants of this union. The mountain continues to be a significant landmark to Ngāti Manuhiri and is valued for its ecology including the Waiwhiu kauri grove.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historical and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Pohuehue Scenic Reserve

This prominent scenic reserve located beside State Highway 1 is particularly valued by Ngāti Manuhiri as a visible and accessible remnant of the lush native forest that once covered the district. It takes its name from a native climber, the pohuehue that was valued for its tenacity.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

The name of the reserve is also valued as a reminder of the Ngāti Manuhiri ancestor Pōhuehue who was the father of the twentieth century Ngāti Manuhiri leader Tenetahi Te Riringa.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historical and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Te Kawau Tūmārō ō Toi, also known as Kawau Island

Te Kawau Tūmārō ō Toi – the sentinel cormorant of Toi – is of major cultural, spiritual, and historical significance to Ngāti Manuhiri. The island is one of several iconic landmarks in the Ngāti Manuhiri rohe, including Te Hauturu-o-Toi / Little Barrier Island, that were named after the illustrious ancestor Toi Te Huatahi. Together, they form Ngā Poitō ō Te Kupenga ō Toi Te Huatahi – the floats of the fishing net of Toi – or the islands that stand in Te Moana Nui ō Toi – the great sea of Toi (the northern Hauraki Gulf).

Through ancient whakapapa, Ngāti Manuhiri are direct descendants of Toi Te Huatahi. The relationship of Ngāti Manuhiri with the island extends back through descent from Manaia, not only to Toi Te Huatahi but also to the ancestor and atua, Maui. Ngāti Manuhiri came to occupy the island in the late seventeenth century after they and their Te Kawerau relatives defeated the local people at the battle of Huruhuruwaea on the adjoining mainland. Ngāti Manuhiri occupied Kawau Island mainly for the purpose of fishing, as its soils were infertile and there was a shortage of fresh water in summer. Occupation by Ngāti Manuhiri continued until the disruption of Te Pakanga ā Te Pū - the musket wars of the 1820s and 1830s. After the alienation of the island without the participation of Ngāti Manuhiri in the 1840s, the iwi continued to maintain kāinga on the mainland immediately adjoining Kawau Island at Mangatāwhiri (Jones Bay), Tāwharanui, and Waikauri, which was occupied until 1912. Ngāti Manuhiri sailing vessels, operated by rangatira such as Tenetahi Te Riringa, provided a trading service for the copper mine on the island until the 1850s, and later for Sir George Grey who purchased Kawau Island in 1862. This shipping service was maintained by Tenetahi's sons Wi Taiawa Paraone and Kiri Paraone until the early twentieth century. The Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira Te Kiri Kaiparaoa visited Grey regularly on the island during the 1860s and, according to Ngāti Manuhiri tradition, was presented with a sword at Mansion House at around 1864. Since the 1980s Ngāti Manuhiri has assisted the Hauraki Gulf Marine Park Board, and its successor the Department of Conservation, in planning for the management of the historic reserve.

Statement of Association for the Ngāti Manuhiri Coastal Statutory Acknowledgement Area

The coastal marine area and the coastal environment adjoining are central to the origins, mana and identity of Ngāti Manuhiri as an iwi, and as part of the ocean-focused tribal grouping Ngāti Wai ki te Moana.

Ngāti Manuhiri have an important ancestral relationship with the coastal marine area extending from Mangawhai (the Mangawhai Harbour) to Matakana (the Matakana Estuary). Broader and shared ancestral interests are also maintained within a coastal area covering the seaway known as Te Moana Nui ō Toi – the great sea of Toi (the central and northern Hauraki Gulf). In the north, Ngāti Manuhiri share ancestral relationships and interests from Paepae ō Tū (Bream Tail) on the eastern coastline, out to the islands of Tūturu (Sail Rock) and Pokohinu (the Motuhinau Islands group).

The Ngāti Manuhiri coastal statutory acknowledgement area encompasses the islands of Hauturu-o-Toi / Little Barrier Island, and Aotea (Great Barrier Island), where Ngāti Manuhiri have shared ancestral interests, including on Rangiahua (Flat Island), Motu Mahuki, Motu Taiko, and their marine environs. Ngāti Manuhiri accept that their relatives Ngāti Rehua act as primary kaitiaki of these interests at Aotea.

The southern boundary of the Ngāti Manuhiri coastal statutory acknowledgement area extends from the south western extremity of Aotea (Great Barrier Island) through the seas known traditionally as Taitūmata and Te Awanui ō Hei, to Takapou (Channel Island). It then runs westward through the seaway known as Moana Te Rapu, to the south of the Whāngaparāoa Peninsula, to reach the eastern coastline of the Auckland region at Ōkura. There are places of spiritual, historical, cultural and economic importance to Ngāti Manuhiri along the entire coastline between Ōkura and Paepae ō Tū (Bream Tail). Seaways of particular significance to Ngāti Manuhiri include Waimiha (Ōmaha Bay) which was associated with the annual whale migrations described below, Moanauriuri (Kawau Bay), and Waihi (the North Channel of Kawau Bay). This latter area is a place of particular mana associated with the landmarks and ritually important areas of Karangatuoro, Matatūahu, Tangaroa and Tokatū.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

Te Moana Nui ō Toi Te Huatahi – The Great Sea of Toi Te Huatahi

Ngāti Manuhiri trace descent from the famous early Māori ancestor and voyager Toi Te Huatahi, after whom Te Moana Nui ō Toi (the central and northern Hauraki Gulf) is named. This ocean area, and its mauri or spiritual essence, kaitiaki or spiritual guardians, biodiversity, seaways, islands, and traditions, lie at the heart of the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri. Te Moana Nui ō Toi, and its islands and coastal margins are also associated with the earliest ancestral origins of Ngāti Manuhiri, through descent from the ancestors Maui Pae, Manaia, and Tahuhunuorangī. This seaway was also associated with the arrival of the Tainui and Aotea waka in the region, and the renowned ancestors Rakataura and Turi from whom the eponymous ancestor Manuhiri descends. The importance of the coastal area to Ngāti Manuhiri over many generations is reflected by ancient whakataukī and waiata, traditions associated with the ocean, the sailing and navigational skills of the tribe, and the adornment of Ōmaha Marae as the present day focal point of the iwi today. Tradition tells us that Te Moana Nui ō Toi was a place of arrival for famous ancestral voyaging canoes, a place intimately associated with the early ancestors of Ngāti Manuhiri, a place that is watched over by kaitiaki or spiritual guardians, and a vast economic resource that was jealously guarded and coveted over many generations.

Ngā Pōito ō Te Kupenga ō Toi Te Huatahi – The Floats of the Fishing Net of Toi Te Huatahi

The motu (islands), motu nohinohi (islets) and kōhatu (rocks) that lie within the coastal area of significance to Ngāti Manuhiri are known collectively as Ngā Pōito ō Te Kupenga ō Toi Te Huatahi – —the floats of the fishing net of Toi Te Huatahi. Several of them are particularly significant as they carry the name of the ancestor Toi, with examples being Ngā Taratara ō Toi (—the Needles at the northern tip of Aotea), Te Kawau Tūmārō ō Toi (Kawau Island), and Te Hauturu-o-Toi / Little Barrier Island. The following waiata oriori (lullaby) illustrates the collective spiritual unity of these islands, and their importance to Ngāti Manuhiri, who occupied Hauturu-o-Toi / Little Barrier Island until 1896.

Me piki taua ki te tihī

ō Hauturu muia ao.

Ka matakītaki taua

ki ngā pōito ō te kupenga

ō Toi Te Huatahi.

E tama tangi kine, ē!

Let us climb to the summit of Hauturu wreathed in cloud.

Here we can view

the floats of the fishing net of Toi Te Huatahi.

Oh child crying distressfully, e!

The larger islands were occupied permanently, provided a wide range of food and were protected by fortified pā.

Of particular importance were the manu oi (mutton bird species) that were harvested in early summer and preserved in their own fat. This delicacy was traditionally offered to distinguished guests and was central to the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri. The widespread introduction of pests such as the ship rat, and the alienation of the islands in the nineteenth century, made it difficult for Ngāti Manuhiri and others to obtain manu oi. Ngāti Manuhiri continued to accompany their relatives to harvest tītī from Pokohinu (the Mokohinau Island Group) until wartime restrictions were introduced around 1940.

Ngā Tohorā Kaitiaki ā Manaia – “the Guardian Whales of Manaia”

Several of the islands located within Te Moana nui ō Toi hold significance to Ngāti Manuhiri as descendants of the renowned northern ancestor Manaia I. Ngāti Manuhiri tradition explains that the ancestor Manaia I communed with the vast numbers of whales that migrated through the seas off the eastern coast of the region. A retinue of whales always accompanied him on his voyages and became his mōkaikai (pets). Prior to his death, Manaia I turned several of these whales into stone and placed them throughout his ancestral domain as markers of the area over which he held mana, and as kaitiaki (guardians) for his descendants. The kaitiaki that are associated with Ngāti Manuhiri and their close relatives include: Te Tohorā ā Manaia (an islet of the south western end of Aotea), and Te Mau Tohorā ā Manaia (Motuora Island) located to the north of the Mahurangi

Harbour entrance.

The annual whale migrations through Te Moana nui ō Toi were of major significance to Ngāti Manuhiri, and remain so. They symbolise ancestral associations, the changing of the seasons, and the rich marine biodiversity contained within this vast ocean area. The coastal seaways between Whāngaparāoa, ‘the bay of the sperm whales’, and Tokatū Point, provided a resting place for migrating whales and their calves. The seaway lying to the north of Tāwharanui, and extending towards Hauturu-o-Toi / Little Barrier Island, was known traditionally as Waimiha or Te Aumiha. This name has layers of meaning relating to the whale calves that rested in the coastal waters, the ambergris cast ashore by the whales, and the heavy seas that arise in this area. Whales often stranded on this part of the coast, in particular on the northern side of the Tokatū Peninsula, bringing a rich bounty for Ngāti Manuhiri. On occasions whales were also caught by the young men of the tribe, both as a symbol of manhood and as a resource. The name of the nineteenth century Ngāti Manuhiri leader Te Kiri Kaiparaoa symbolises this activity and the exercise of rangatiratanga:

He reirei ngā niho parāoa, he parāoa ngā kauae.

If you wear a necklace of sperm whale teeth, you need the jaws of a sperm whale to carry them.

Te Ao ō Tangaroa - The Realm of Tangaroa

The seas of Te Moana Nui ō Toi provided a vast source of food for Ngāti Manuhiri over the generations, including sea mammals, a great variety of fish, shellfish, seaweed and sea birds. Knowledge relating to the location and resources of individually named tauranga ika (fishing grounds) was handed down over the generations until this practice was disrupted by the introduction of modern sonar devices. Of particular importance to Ngāti Manuhiri were tauranga ika associated with whāpuku (groper), tarakihi, tawatawa (mackerel), tāmure (snapper), kahawai, and haku (kingfish). The tauranga mango (shark fishing grounds) of Kawau Bay were used by Ngāti Manuhiri and others to catch the school shark species known locally as muri. This important winter food source was coveted by iwi and became the cause of significant conflict in the eighteenth century. Ngāti Manuhiri continued to harvest muri from this area regularly until the establishment of a shark oil processing factory at Sandspit in the late nineteenth century, and periodically until the 1920s.

Te Takutaimoana – the Coastline

The coastline extending between the Whāngaparāoa Peninsula and Paepae ō Tū (Bream Tail) includes a wide range of rocky, sandy and estuarine marine habitats, once rich in a variety of inshore fish species, koura and shellfish. Ngāti Manuhiri were traditionally reliant on this kaimoana resource, which was harvested seasonally according to strict customary practices until the alienation of most of the Ngāti Manuhiri tribal domain by the late nineteenth century. In spite of this, the Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira Te Kiri Kaiparaoa continued to assert rights over the resources of the coastline between Tokatū and Pākiri until his death in 1873. Prior to the introduction of animal pest species, deforestation and land clearance in the mid nineteenth century, the coastal environment also contained seal colonies, for example Te Pūrei Kekenō at Hāwera (Ti Point). There were also large seabird breeding colonies on most of the larger coastal headlands from which birds and eggs were harvested. Settlement was focused around sheltered bays, harbours and river mouths, with fortified pā protecting the resources of each of these communities. Places of special significance to Ngāti Manuhiri on this coastline include: Tiritiri Mātangi Island, named after the Waikato birthplace of the eponymous ancestor Manuhiri, Whangaparāoa, —the bay of the sperm whales, Motu Mahurangi (Mahurangi Island), Awa Waiwerawera (the Waiwera River), Te Awa Pūhoi (the Pūhoi River), Te Muri ō Tarariki, Waihē (the Mahurangi River), Te Korotangi (a fortified pā), Ōpahi, Motu Kororā (Saddle Island), Matakana (a fortified pā), Awa Matakana (Matakana Harbour and River), Purahurawai (Scandrett’s Bay/Mullet Point), and the islands of Te Mau Tohorā ā Manaia (Motuora), Moturekareka, Motumanu, Motuketekete, Taungamārō, Takangaroa, Ruakoura, Tangaroa, and Te Kawau Tūmārō ō Toi (Kawau Island). The coastline extending from Matakana northward around the Tokatū Peninsula to Whāngateau contains numerous areas of significance to Ngāti

Manuhiri. These include traditional inshore fishing grounds, netting and kaimoana gathering areas, pā, kāinga, wāhi tapu, tūahu, and navigational and historical landmarks. Examples are provided by: Waimarumarū, Wai ihe, Pākaraka, Karangatuoro, Te Ngaere, Waikauri, Matatūahu, Ōponui (a fortified pā), Mangatāwhiri, Pāhī (a fortified pā), Tokatū, Waikōkōwai, Pukeruhirui (a fortified pā), Waimarū, Waitapu, Te Kiekie, Te Wairenga and Te Taumutu (Ōmaha Spit), Whāngateau, Waikōkopu, Uruhau, Pātito (a fortified pā), Koekoea (a fortified pā), Hāwera, Te Pūrei Kekeno, Piupiu (a fortified pā), Kohuroa (Matheson Bay), Whānga ō maha (Leigh Harbour), Panetiki, Motururu, Wakatūwhenua, Motu Hāwere, Ōkākari (a fortified pā), Pitokuku, Taumata (a fortified pā), Ngā One Haea (Pākiri Beach), Te Ārai ō Tāhuhu (a fortified pā), Mangawhai, and Paepae ō Tū (Bream Tail). Several of these coastal sites, including the main harbours and the region's longest east coast beach, are of particular significance to Ngāti Manuhiri as outlined below.

Mangawhai Harbour

Mangawhai – the estuary of the whaill (stingray) – is of major historical, cultural and spiritual importance to Ngāti Manuhiri. Mangawhai was one of the homes of Kahikatearoa, the son of Manuhiri. The estuary provided shelter for those travelling by canoe from Mahurangi to Whāngarei. An overland pathway also linked the head of the harbour at Ōawatea with the Ōruāwharo area on the Kaipara Harbour. A variety of fish were netted from the harbour, although this did not include the whai which is a kaitiaki to Ngāti Manuhiri. Following the battle of Ika ā Ranganui fought against a combined northern force near Kaiwaka in 1825, heavy losses were sustained by Ngāti Manuhiri at Mangawhai and Te Ārai. As a result the area became tapu and was not permanently occupied at the time of early European settlement.

Ngā One Haea – Pākiri Beach

The coastline adjoining Ngā One Haea (Pākiri Beach) has long been renowned for its high quality 'glistening white sand', which is the origin of its traditional name. The beach provided an important coastal pathway until the mid nineteenth century and remains emblematic to the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri. Settlements were located right along the beach, with a focus on the stream mouths and the dune-impounded freshwater lakes. These settlements were protected by fortified pā, including: Ōkākari, Pākiri and Taurere o Rei in the south, Whetūmākurukuru, Ōpuāwanga and Putukākā in the central area, and Te Ārai ō Tāhuhu in the north. Kaimoana taken from the seas adjoining Ngā One Haea sustained Ngāti Manuhiri over the generations, and continues to enable the provision of hospitality at Ōmaha Marae. A particular feature were tuatua harvested from the beach, as well as paua and kūtai (mussels) taken from Pitokuku, Wakatūwhenua and Motururu. Pākiri was famed for the snapper run that took place in September, with thousands of fish being dried and smoked. Kanae (mullet) were netted in large numbers along the beach and in the Pākiri River, and kahawai were caught around the river and stream mouths. Makawhiti (herrings) and inanga (whitebait) were also prolific in the Pākiri River. The coastline adjoining the southern end of Ngā One Haea is associated with the largest remaining Ngāti Manuhiri community at Pākiri, and is of symbolic importance as the last piece of coastal land on the east coast remaining in Māori ownership between Auckland and Whāngarei. The Ngāti Manuhiri relationship with Pākiri-Mangawhai coastal sand resource was recognised by the Planning Tribunal in 1993.

Whānga ō Maha – Leigh Harbour

Whānga ō Maha is the traditional name for Leigh Harbour. This name refers to the importance of the harbour and the wide variety of natural resources that it offered. It gives its name to Ōmaha Marae and the Ōmaha Block located on the northern side of the harbour. This name of major significance to Ngāti Manuhiri became mis-located to the Whāngateau area in the late nineteenth century. The harbour offered a wide variety of kaimoana resources. It provided a sheltered anchorage and hauling out place for waka, and later for sailing vessels and fishing launches operated by Ngāti Manuhiri. The islet of Panetiki at the harbour entrance remains in the ownership of Ngāti Manuhiri, as does a coastal landing place providing access to Ōmaha Marae and Urupā.

Whāngateau Harbour

Whāngateau, 'the harbour of the strong tidal current', is a place of considerable historical and cultural significance. The traditional importance of this large harbour is illustrated by the fact that its resources were protected by six fortified pā. The sandbanks of the lower harbour and the Waikōkopu Inlet provided the most important source of pipi and tuangi (cockle) shellfish within the Ngāti Manuhiri rohe. A wide variety of fish could be caught around the harbour entrance and koura (crayfish) were taken from the rocky coastline surrounding Hāwera (Ti Point). A special delicacy traditionally associated with Whāngateau was the kūaka (godwit) that was harvested in summer. The coastal land surrounding Whāngateau was part of the controversial 'Dacre's Claim'.

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

Ngāti Manuhiri occupied Whāngateau until the late nineteenth century, and continue to harvest resources there today.

Waihē – Mahurangi Harbour

Ngāti Manuhiri have a shared ancestral interest in Waihē (the Mahurangi Harbour) as descendants of Maki and his wife Rotu who occupied Te Korotangi Pā at the southern harbour entrance. Places of particular significance to Ngāti Manuhiri include: the island pā of Maunganui (Casnell Island), Motu Kauri (Grant's Island), Puhinui (the waterfalls at Warkworth), and Pukapuka Cemetery which remains in use at the head of the harbour. The traditional name for the harbour originates from the fact that its resources were jealously guarded and fought over down the generations.

Kō te iti ō Waihē, he puta kino nui – —Even though Waihē (the disputed harbour) is not large, it has been the cause of great trouble.

Ongoing Association with the Coastal Area

Following the alienation of most of their coastal land in the nineteenth century, Ngāti Manuhiri continued to utilise the resources of the coastal marine area. The Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira Te Kiri Kaiparaoa operated the coastal trading vessel Industry from 1858. His son in law Tenetahi Te Riringa was a renowned sailing captain, operating such vessels as the Rangatira, and his sons Wi Taiawa and Kiri Paraone ran a trading service and commercial fishing operation out of Whānga ō Maha (Leigh Harbour) for many years. Ngāti Manuhiri were involved in commercial fishing operations in the area until recently, and continue to hold significant commercial fishing interests through the Ngāti Wai Trust Board. Ngāti Manuhiri were associated with the establishment and operation of the Hauraki Gulf Maritime Park in 1967, and have more recently played an active role on the Hauraki Gulf Forum established under the provisions of the Hauraki Gulf Marine Park Act (2000). In their role as kaitiaki, Ngāti Manuhiri continue to play an active role in coastal planning, monitoring and management processes administered by the council and the Department of Conservation. Ngāti Manuhiri has also played an active partnership role with the council in the establishment and management of the Tāwharanui Open Sanctuary ecological restoration project, and its associated Marine Protection Area. As the iwi develops further capacity it looks forward to being fully engaged in exercising kaitiakitanga in partnership with other iwi, the Crown and the wider community, within its coastal acknowledgement area.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with the Hōteoro River.

Kō Hōteoro te awa

Kō Mangatū te pā

Kō Manuhiri te tangata

Kō Ngāti Manuhiri te iwi

Te Awa Hōteoro (the Hōteoro River) was an important traditional resource of Ngāti Manuhiri, and it remains a water body of major cultural, spiritual and historic significance to the iwi. The river has particular importance as the home of the eponymous ancestor Manuhiri who occupied pā at Tūtā, Umukuri and Mangatū where he lived until his death. The lower reaches of the river were also an important boundary marker between Ngāti Manuhiri and other groups. Until the late 1860s the lower river was the focal point of settlement for Uri ō Katea, a hapū of Ngāti Manuhiri who descended from Tūwhakaeketa, the second son of Manuhiri. Of special importance are Taihāmau and Iriwata, the sons of Tūwhakaeketa, who stand as stones in the river. They are located just above the Tarakihi rapids which marked the navigable upper reaches of the river.

From the time Ngāti Manuhiri settled the area in the late seventeenth century, kāinga and cultivations were maintained beside many parts of the river including at Hōteoro, Te Awapū, Mangakura, Mangatū, Awa Matangao and Kawakawa. The Hōteoro River provided a wide range of fish, eels, kākahi and water fowl. Kāinga on the lower part of the river were renowned for their karaka groves from which ripe kernels were harvested in autumn. As the river extended many kilometres inland to Tomarata and Whāngaripo it provided a traditionally important east-west transport route.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Te Awa Pūhoi, also known as the Pūhoi River

The Proposed Auckland Unitary Plan (notified 30 September 2013)

Te Awa Pūhoi, also known as the Pūhoi River, and its tributaries Manga Hikauae and Manga Mihirau are of significance to Ngāti Manuhiri. Manuhiri, the eponymous ancestor of Ngāti Manuhiri, and his brothers Ngāwhetū and Maeaeariki lived beside the river in the late seventeenth century. The river provided an important inland route and food source. The river and its environs are also associated with several events of considerable importance in the traditions of Ngāti Manuhiri. At Mihirau on the upper reaches of Te Awa Pūhoi a major peacemaking meeting was convened by Ngāti Manuhiri and their Te Kawerau relatives with another iwi. The grand-daughter of Manuhiri, Te Kupe, was betrothed to a chief of this other iwi. The union was not successful and further conflict took place. When the land around the upper reaches of the river was sold to the Crown in 1862, the Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira Te Kiri Kaiparaoa sought the protection of a major wāhi tapu at Pūhoi because of its association with his ancestors.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with the Pākiri River

Te Awa Pākiri (the Pākiri River) has been an important resource and landmark for Ngāti Manuhiri from the earliest period of settlement until the present. The river takes its name from Pākiri, the headland pā which has guarded its mouth from the time of Kahikatearoa, son of Manuhiri. The river was navigable for several kilometres and provided a sheltered anchorage for both river and ocean going canoes. It also provided an important source of food which included tuna (eels), kanae (mullet), and waterfowl. Weaving and building materials were gathered from the lower reaches of the river at Raupōroa. The river also marked the southern boundary of the Pākiri Block which was the largest area of land retained by Ngāti Manuhiri after Crown purchases of the mid nineteenth century. The river remains central to the identity of Ngāti Manuhiri today.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with the Poutawa Stream

Wai Poutawa, also known as the Poutawa Stream, and its associated wetland was a focal point for Ngāti Manuhiri settlement on the coastline between Pākiri and Te Ārai ō Tāhuhu (Te Ārai Point) until the mid nineteenth century. Wai Poutawa formed part of an old sub-tribal boundary, and marked the northern edge of the Pākiri Block which Ngāti Manuhiri retained after the first round of Crown land purchases were completed in the 1850s and 1860s. The outlet to the Poutawa Stream provided a permanent source of fresh water on an otherwise dry stretch of coastline. Its wetlands provided an important source of food such as eels, inanga (whitebait), kākahi (fresh water mussels), koura (fresh water crayfish) and water fowl, as well as weaving materials. Taro was cultivated on the stream and wetland margins.

The lower reaches of the stream have major historical significance as they were re-directed through a drain dug by the Ngāti Manuhiri ancestor Wera in the mid eighteenth century. This feature, known as Te Waikeri ā Wera, was the source of the name for the wider surrounding area. The area around the stream is also of particular significance as it was occupied by Kahikatearoa, the son of Manuhiri, and his descendants until the 1870s. The stream marked the eastern end of an overland pathway extending west to the head of the Hōteoro River catchment. Because of its strategic importance, Wai Poutawa and its environs were protected by two fortified pā named Ōpuawhango and Ngā Whetū Mākurukuru.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Te Awa Matakana - the Matakana River

Te Awa Matakana (also known as the Matakana River) is of major significance to Ngāti Manuhiri as a sub-regional boundary marker. In 1853 the Crown identified the area north of the river as 'Parihoro's Claim', with Parihoro then being the oldest Ngāti Manuhiri rangatira in occupation of the district. The river provided an important inland route to kāinga and cultivations located on the fertile country located at the navigable head of the river. It also provided a wide range of food taken from both the fresh and salt-water sections of the river. Beyond the river mouth was one of the most valued tauranga mango (shark fishing grounds) in the region. Here over many generations, down to the late nineteenth century, Ngāti Manuhiri and their relatives gathered large quantities of school sharks known locally as muri. The upper reaches of the Matakana River were protected by several pā, including Pukematekeo, while the lower reaches and the adjoining harbour were protected by the headland pā known as Matakana – 'the glowering eyes'. This pā, which is of considerable significance to Ngāti Manuhiri, gives its name to the river and the surrounding district.

Cultural, Spiritual, Historic and Traditional Association of Ngāti Manuhiri with Awa Waiwerawera

Awa Waiwerawera (the Waiwera River) is a water body of cultural, spiritual and historical significance to Ngāti Manuhiri. This ancestral relationship with the river and its environs, including Waiwerawera (the Waiwera Hot Springs), is shared with other iwi. Motu Mahurangi, the island at the mouth of the river is important in Ngāti Manuhiri tradition. The river mouth area is also important as it was here that Ngāti Manuhiri fought with Ngāti Manaia. In a subsequent peace making agreement, Tukituki of Ngāti Manuhiri was betrothed to the Ngāti Manaia rangatira Rangihokaia. A place of particular importance at the head of the river is the island wāhi tapu known as Motutere (Te Kōroto). The river and its margins are also of significance to Ngāti Manuhiri because of their high ecological values in a coastal environment that has been the subject of ongoing development pressure.
